little ramble: i dont want kids < wild >

prismkitten36

this should probably go on my homethread but oh well lol

i feel like all the struggle u gotta go through just to have a kid who will probably be a screeching bundle of tears and responsibility wont be worth it. at all. sure you get to see them grow up, but i can just adopt an older kid and give them a new home. it's better to give already existing kids without anyone to look after them new homes than to just have new ones which will be more of an effort to take care of.

happeh made a post a few months back which said basically all of this which i do agree with but idc lol

I feel the exact same way. I don't like little kids. They have small, sticky, useless hands. That's besides the point. I myself am adopted, and I would much rather give my love and attention to an already existing kid who doesn't have either of those in their life.

I want to adopt some girls who love animals when I grow up. I do not won't a child when I am not at least out of the house, until I am out of the house I am going to do everything I can to not have any which I doubt I will ever have any at all, but I am also adopted and my bio mom has one husband she divorced so now I have three dads my bio, step, and adopted. I have one pure blood related and four half siblings and three brothers not blood related but adopted. So my bio mom has four kids now which are pretty much all named after Queens except the boy. I have observed that the value of passing on your bl00dl1n3 (the very thing most cultures and mythologies hold sacred) has decreased in humans dramatically. I appreciate the consideration of the other children out there, but you throw out the thoughts about adopting a kid and raising your own... What are the pros and cons between the two?

I'll list some down below this post, but really consider this question, you might find it a better idea to have both... If you know what you are doing and act carefully, you could have the ability to both adopt a kind hearted and we'll behaved child to be an example, as well as raise your own... After all the young learn from the old... If you do it right you could have a happy family of your own and still show some kids a little light. Children that are taught balance, usually don't cause much trouble... I'm going to warn you in advance (hopefully very far in advance), not to give in too much and do not be too stern... don't forget, a little love can go a long way, but grudges can be carried for even longer. Trust me I know.

If you don't like children, tough... you better start learning to, especially if you're going to adopt... But seriously consider your choices before you make a decision... Is it in everyone's best interest? Will it work out okay? And most importantly, can you look back on that choice in the future an be happy with it?

Nimarfira awaits your response...

@Nimarfira I had a dream we were dragons and we got married and had dragonets and we were like really old. I also had a dream that I married my brothers friend and he is disgusting.

If I have kids I want twin girls so they have each other, so if they get bored. If I adopt the same thing. I will not marry you Nimarfira I hope that would be weir because I don't even know you in real life. And all I want is racehorses, dogs, cats, and rabbits. Maybe donkeys, mules, and zebras. My cats and dogs are going inside. Cocker spaniel, dalmation, poodle, husky, belgian, thoroughbred, friesian, my baby, Puppy and yes he is a cat.

TLDR: Children? In this economy?

@Nimarfira we are literally projected to be over earth's carrying capacity for the human race in 30 years, which in the long run would mean a lot of the children this generation would be having would not be born/adopted in a world that would treat them kindly

I think we should manage the population we have instead of adding on it

Some people want kids, others do not. Blaming the fall of the human race on people who don't want kids is extremely backward. We have enough people in the world who want kids to balance out the people who do not. Heck, I'm the youngest of five kids in my house. That's five families covered for.

If you want kids, great! Have them yourself or adopt, it doesn't matter. There are so many kids in the adoption/foster system that you could spend your whole life devoted to raising children.

There are areas where overpopulation is a huge issue and has unforeseen effects. In China when they had the one child law, many families were abandoning their female offspring because they could not "carry on the bloodline". This causes a huge imbalance in the male/female ratio of those generations as a result.

Believe me, people who don't want kids have considered what you said. It's shoved in their face all the time. You aren't the first, and you definitely won't be the last. Respecting each other's wishes and opinions (especially if they aren't hurting you) is a good skill to have.

@Jacquelyn:

1) That would be strange... And awkward.

2)It wouldn't be the first time that has happened.

And 3) You had a dream about that!?

Me and my boyfriend have had conversations abou this exact topic a lot, like A LOT. I was always uncomfortable with the idea of having kids of my own, and of all the possible things that could go wrong. After a good few talks with my boyfriend about this, I've started to warm up to the idea and consider it much more than I did before. All I've got to say to you specifically about this is that I have a good guess that you are at least an adolescent, so you have more than enough time to think more about it so don't get so caught up in the future and focus on the present. Having kids is the least of your worries right now, trust me.

Yep I had a dream about that we were like 50 yr old dragons by the end of the dream. I also had a weird dream where I was Queen Glory and I married Deathbringer but we had to protect are kids and the dragonets died. And then I had one where I was Moonwatcher and me and Winter had to escape from Qibli and so I turned into a firescale skywing. Then we turned into humans. I also had a dream I had a pegasus but I was to heavy and it was flying while I was on the side of cliff and I climber onto its back and we fell. That hurt alot I fell off the bed.

but.. think about it, if everyone wanted to adopt, soon there would be less people to adopt, and then, think.. say your parents were only children, and you and your sibling all decided to adopt, you bassicly just cut off your bloodline from ever moving on, no way to rstor it, there will never be another perso alive that is directy related to you by blood, forever, untill the end of everything, and even further than that too

Well Dolly Parton says she wonders because she is short and blonde and her husband is tall and dark what their children would have looked like but she couldn't have any, but she didn't even get surgy to fix the problem and she says that maybe he just didn't plan for her to have kids so that she could be a mother to everyon. I don't want kids unless their daughters. Otherwise the first time I have a boy I am adopting because I don't want to my aunt who had four boys three living and two girls one living. I don't mean because some of them died but because I don't want a house full a boys I already have enough of them. So I will likely adopt and I am adopted myself so yeah my brother was the third and I was named after my grandmother. My brother is special needs so he can't continue my dads line who is also special needs but its not to the point where you would really notice. I have four half-siblings.

I love kids and I've always wanted to be a mom, and I'll probably adopt over having my own. It isn't important to me that my genes get passed on through the generations, and there are a lot of kids who need families.
